

Hillandale Farms

About Us

Hillandale Farms was founded in 1958 in Flushing, Ohio as a small regional egg distributor. Since that time we have grown to one of the larger providers of farm fresh shell eggs in the country. Our company has modern production facilities in key locations across the United States. We are a provider of quality products to retailers and distributors throughout the country.

But there's more to Hillandale than the products we sell. We're actively involved in satisfying our customer needs at all levels of their marketing programs. Hillandale Farms wants you to succeed and can offer marketing strategy and planning that will help you energize your egg sales.

We specialize in private label branding and are able to customize an egg program tailored to your corporate strategy. Hillandale Farms can assist in category management by analyzing current sales and set you on a course to maximize your profitability. We can assist in developing supply chain management that includes DSD, warehouse and Cross Dock programs. Hillandale Farms is also very experienced in new product development. This includes the production of value added eggs, packaging design and program performance management.

Hillandale Farms is a success driven company with a focus on our customers. It's our products and organization that genuinely sets us apart from other egg producers. Hillandale has its own large fleet of trucks for both feed and egg delivery. That ensures security and safety for all of the food products that we sell.

We make warehouse deliveries throughout the country for assured freshness. Need additional flexibility? Hillandale offers direct store delivery for your convenience. Hillandale Farms believes in having a sustainable operation including renewable energy. We have initiated a program to further improve energy efficiency, including a gasification facility that will convert waste to usable energy. In addition, we have wetland areas that naturally filter storm water runoff from our laying houses.

Hillandale Farms has a proven track record of quality products and services. Our vertically integrated business model allows us to be a low cost producer and provide top quality products at competitive prices. Hillandale Farms manages refrigerated warehouse facilities to ensure the freshest eggs when you need them fast. We also offer butter, cheese and meats in select markets nationwide.

We provide a full range of products from commodity to value added eggs and our expanded capabilities and category management will maximize your sales. Hillandale Farms is committed to being your trusted full service egg supplier. Come visit our farms and see firsthand the difference quality makes.